A YEAR'S TRIAL.

The two-years' requirement for admission to the professional schools has been given a trial at the University of Missouri. Without a doubt it has proven a success.

Missouri was the first university to adopt the two-year requirement. Many other schools had made one year's work in the college of arts and science a requisite for professional studies, but none had adopted the two-year requirement for all departments.

The enrollment in some of the schools of the University necessarily decreased in comparison with last year, for the freshmen classes were smaller. But the enrollment for the College of Arts and Science increased proportionately, resulting in a larger total enrollment than last year.

After another year the enrollments of the professional schools will increase. In the meantime the quality of the work done by the professional schools will have been materially improved, and the state will be the richer for it.

POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS.

Somebody has called attention to the fact that we squander an enormous amount of money and energy in choosing a president. In his opinion we could accomplish the desired ends with much less expense and trouble.

But he should remember that it costs a vast sum yearly to run our government, and that the money spent in political campaigns is not a dominant part of the total. Moreover, governments are yet in the experimental stage. We have not come in sight of the perfect. We are working in the dark.

With the many different opinions and constantly changing conditions we must ever be on the alert for improvement. The greatest thing we have to guard against is apathy in government.

Herein lies the value of political campaigns. They serve to bring great issues sharply before the people, to vitalize the questions of the day. If we are to find the best way and the best men to run our expensive machinery of government we must expect to spend some money in the effort.

England is threatened with a plague of wasps. Remembering it is that is the female that is armed with the sting, England well knows from her recent experience with what she has to deal and is alarmed at the prospect.

Every man is a debtor in the sense that he owes himself a living. The man who tries to dodge his debts and to make other people shoulder them is not an honest debtor.

What will soonest subdue the revolutionary spirit in Mexico, is an army of school teachers fortified in "little red" school houses throughout the republic.

The newspaper editors that think they are fooling "all the people all the time" by their insincere campaign twaddle are fooling themselves but not the other people.

There may be something of poetry in dogs baying at the moon provided the baying is moderate and musical "Sleep that knits up the ravel'd sleeve of care" and for lack of sleep provoke "curses not loud but deep".

THE NEWEST BOOKS

Making a Tennis Court.

In the growing importance of tennis as a sport there is demand for a book on the making of a tennis court. George E. Walsh meets the demand with a volume which discusses an intelligent, practical way the whole story of the building of a dirt or grass court. It is one of the publisher's admirable series of House and Garden Books. (McBride, Nast & Co., 31 East 17th Street, New York. 50 cents net. Postage, 5 cents.)

Planning a Trip Abroad.

Here's a book of real friendly counsel, "Planning a Trip Abroad," by Blair Jaekel. It is more than a guide book. It is a talk on the things one who plans a journey to Europe wishes to know now. (McBride, Nast & Co., 31 East 17th Street, New York. 75 cents net. Postage, 6 cents.)

Lee's Priceless Recipes.

"Lee's Priceless Recipes," "the standard collection of various formulas and simple methods is of great value for farmers, dairymen, housekeepers, mechanics, and persons in every department of human endeavor. (Laird & Lee, Chicago. 268 pages. 60 cents.)

Conklin's Handy Manual.

Conklin's Handy Manual of useful information and world's atlas contains information regarding all states and countries and many subjects. It has 52 maps and much important and valuable information. (Laird and Lee, 1732 Michigan Avenue, Chicago. 516 pages. 60 cents.)

My Lady's Toilette Table.

The most treasured heirloom of an old Southern family is a little twenty-two page book, now yellowed with age, which was wrought by the hands of Catherine Shepherd, a belle of Old Virginia, for the special edification of a favorite niece. It is entitled "My Lady's Toilette Table," and it portrays the various quaint toilet articles of its day—each painted in water color, with a rhymed legend in the handwriting of its authoress. Each article is made to typify some womanly virtue, and the deft and ingenious manner in which this is done has delighted successive generations of the family possessing it. This unique book—like no other in the world—is published with all its colors and old-fashioned handwriting faithfully reproduced. It takes its reader back to the days of Martha Washington, when powder and patches did not conceal the high womanhood of their wearers. Its precepts are no less timely for the maids and matrons of today than when they were first penned. Each page is a delightful surprise. (C. H. Graves Co., Philadelphia. $1.00 postpaid.)

COMING WITH THE BRONCHOS

Wild West and Far East Show Will Be Here September 23.

The broncho is not taught to buck. The horse in disposition, is not unlike the human family—some are gentle, lovable and true; others are mean, vicious, and tricky. It is the latter class, that test the skill of rough-riders from all parts of the world, and are one of the feature attractions of the Young Buffalo Wild West and Colonel Cummins' Far East, which will exhibit in Columbia, Monday, September 23.

The broncho that cannot be broken to saddle, is known as an outlaw or criminal. These animals have a very large repertoire of unlovable traits, among them being their ability to kick. They also seem to possess a desire to eat any person who comes within range of their ever alert jaws. When it comes to bucking and plunging, a Minnesota cyclone is said to be a gentle summer zephyr in comparison. If their mad frenzy to injure their mounts they frequently jump high into the air and fall on their back with a wild desire to pinion their riders to the ground. These bronchos come from a long line of criminal or wild horses that roamed the plains in the early days and were the companions of the buffalo and the Indian. They had never known a master, and their offspring—the broncho, has, in all the years that followed, never acquired a liking for civilization.

The management of the Young Buffalo Wild West and Colonel Cummins' Far East has extended a cordial invitation to owners of unbroken or vicious horses to have them ridden, broken and subdued free of charge, in the arena, during the rough-riding period, of the exhibition.

Back to Visit Each Year.

W. H. Lynch, A. B., '68, A. M., '72, will be in Columbia tomorrow for his annual visit to the university. He has been here once every year for the last 44 years. He is now field representative of the Springfield State Normal, but formerly was superintendent of schools at Ozark, Christian county, Missouri. Prof. Lynch leaves Springfield for Columbia today.
